

Capital Investment

Save the Orangutan is a Swedish charitable organisation working for the conservation of the critically endangered orangutan and its habitat in Indonesia.

The strategy of the organisation is to use at least 75 % of raised funds for our purpose and transferring as much of these raised funds as possible to activities in Indonesia to further the objective of Save the Orangutan.

Currently the total operating revenue of the organisation is at a level, which does not justify an investment policy. However, Save the Orangutan will at all time ensure financial liability of the organisation. If the revenue of the organisation increases significant over the coming years, Save the Orangutan will establish a capital investment policy to ensure proper management of the financial assets of the organisation.
